Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence

MY ANSWER by Billy Fraham

@ 1964 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: Now that my husband died I am all alone and frightened. Please help me. -F. S.

ANSWER - You've forgotten Christ's promine, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." (Matthew 28:30). Christ is knocking on your door. Open it. Invite Him in, and you'll never feel all alone again. This has been the experience of countless Christians. It can be yours today. Think of Him as there by your side. Open your Bible and read the Gospels again. The Good News is Pray that the Comforter will come, and He will. The living Christ is waiting to comfort you now. You are never alone if Jesus is with you. He came and suffered for you. He died and rose again so that He could always be near to bring you help. Listen to the promise He gave to you and to me: "I will not leave you comfortless, I will come to you." (John 14:18). You can trust His word. Jesus is trying now to calm your fears. All you have to do is open your heart to Him.

Now look around you and see what you can do to help someone else. The world is full of lonely, burdened people and the Lord is looking for loving hearts He can use to bless theirs.

QUESTION: What did Isaiah mean by the "Treas-

ANSWER: The word "darkness" usually refers to solitude, separation, or affliction. The human spirit is usually at its best in times of trial. Security and prosperity never develop the soul - they often tend to shrivel our spirits. Study history and you will find that adversity brings out the best in people. A smooth sea never made a skillful mariner, neither does steady prosperity and success qualify us for usefulness and happiness. The martyrs of ancient times, in fortifying their souls against outward adversity, acquired a strength that was su-

This age needs to rediscover "treasures of darkness;" the art of meditation and solitude. We need to guard against softness and the rift of conformity. The soul's muscles are best conditioned in the gymnasium of discipline.

QUESTION: Could you explain Romans 11:16-23 to me? I have gone over this time and time again, but am not certain of the meaning. -

ANSWER: I am sorry, but space would forbid me explaining all of these verses to you. But let's take the one verse which I believe to be the key to the rest: "For if God spared not the natural branches, take heed lest he also spare not thee." (Romans 11:21)

The natural branches here mentioned, of course, were Israel. The warning is against spiritual smugness and carelessness. It is a very easy thing for nations, religious groups, or individuals to become smug self-righteous, and complacent about their status before God. This was a warning to the Gentile Christians to not feel that they were God's pets, and that He would deliver them no matter how they conducted them-

The warning also has an in-dividual implication. Christians have to guard against false piety, complacency and even hypocrisy. The key word of the New Testament is Love. Faith is important. Doctrine is important. But Paul said: "Now abideth faith, hope and love; but the greatest of these is love." We can never win the non-Christian by smugness, or by exhibiting suchristlike attitudes. Love is the spark that will set the world aflame for God.

versity of Massachusetts will be playing in bowl games this

These bowls are mere teacups compared to the huge stadia in which the major college teams will display their might on the first day of 1965, but they offer a lot of satisfaction to the good small college teams which would like to crown their seasons with some sort of championship competition.

This year for the first time the National Collegiate Athletic Association is sponsoring four regional championship playoffs for College Davision - small college - teams. Each is tabbed as a bowl game. In addition the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics has two regional playoffs with the winners meeting in the new Champion Bowl game at Augusta, Ga., Dec. 12.

Massachusetts and East Carolina have been chosen to meet in the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla., for the NCAA Eastern regional championship Dec. 12. The other NCAA regional playoffs, all scheduled for the same day, are the Grantland Rice Bowl at Murfreesboro, Tenn., the Pecan Bowl at Abilene. Tex., and the Camellia Bowl at Sacramento, Calif. PLANS AND IDEAS ARCHITECT'S SKETCHBOOK -Saturday, Nov. 21, 1964 2-in-1 Christmas Creche Is Colorful Family Fun

By BILL MEYERRIECKS

The Sketchbook project this week is a very special one. It is the Christmas Creche, one that the entire family can enjoy making and one that will look so beautiful whether you make it as an outdoor display or as a table or window decoration. The design plan S-190 shows you how to make it both ways.

Before we explain how really simple it is to make the nativity figures and manger as seen in the illustration, we would like to point out the design features of ooking over the house plans in the creche itself. The figures, newspapers, I see a provision especially of Mary and Joseph for pocket doors. What are they? and the angel, are basic, beauti-ANSWER: Pocket doors slide ful shapes based on the circle, into openings in the walls and. triangle and square. The inditherefore, are generally used vidual elements blend with one only in new construction. They another to create simplicity itself -an almost child-like look that is are gaining in popularity in recent years, but actually they so appealing to the eye.

The design plan shows, in same size patterns, just exactly how to cut out all figures. It is so easy that even an eight-yearold child can accomplish making them in a few hours of interest. The shapes are traced and transferred to ordinary colored construction paper found in most stationery stores (colors used are specified in the plan). They really sparkie in color. The figures are of approximately eight or nine

For the outside display creche. They stand in proportion to the five-foot high manger. The attractive set of figures and manger can be made from thin exterior plywood or pulpboard which are easy to handle and cut.

As seen in the photograph, besides the manger proper, there are Mary, Joseph, the angel and the Baby Jesus cutouts. Figures and manger construction are detailed as to assembly, parts and final finishing with color paint (for outdoor).

in proportion to Joseph's height THIS BEAUTIFUL, happy Christmas creche makes a colorful outdoor display for your lawn, or if you follow the Sketchbook plan's directions, you can make it for a win mantle decoration or for just about anywhere to highlight Dad can follow the gridded, the holiday. And it's so inexpensive to make. To obtain scaled patterns of the figures. Tape Works Indefinitely; Eliminates Nails, Hooks

There is a new material available for photographers who wish to display photographs. It eliminates holes, hooks or nails on walls, panels or on pictures. It is easy to apply, and can be used and reused indefinitely. It is handy for a photo gallery at home or a public display in a museum, school, church or camera club.

I first became aware of Velcro tapes: that's the new material; more than a year ago as one of the judges in the Kodak National Snapshot Contest in Washington. We sat in front of a large panel covered with a velvet-like material. When a photograph received a judge's approval, the assistant holding the photo merely touched the panel with it - and it remained there! In the discussions which followed, some of the photos were removed and others rearranged. They came off the panel easily or could be put back

I marveled at this phenomenon and later went up to examine the photos. Each one had a patch of material attached to the rear side. It was dry and stiff to the feel. Yet when it touched the velvet-like panel, they clung together tenaciously. By pulling on one side, they came apart. It was like magic or magnetism.

A few days ago I happened to pass by as my brother, Max Desfor, supervising editor of Wide World Photos, was changing a display of 30 by 40 inch color photos in the AP Building in New York. I discovered he was using the same material in 34-inch tapes. The previous photos had clung to the wall with these tapes for about seven months. Now they had been peeled away without any damage and the new pictures adhered to the same wall support. This time I investigated fur-

The magical "magnetic" material is Velcro tape. Like the positive and negative poles of a magnet, the tape comes in pairs: "hook" and "pile." And, like a single end of a magnet, neither the pile nor the hook tape has any adhering power by itself. . .they work together or not at all.

Each tape is made of nylon. Pile tape (usually the base, wall or panel material) is covered with thousands of tiny, soft but strong loops of Lylon. Hook tape (usually attached to the back of photos) is covered with thous-ands of tiny, stiff little hooks of nylon. When the two tapes come together, the mass of stiff nylon hooks engage the mass of nylon loops and the two become firmly enmeshed. When the two tapes are pulled apart, the nylon hooks at the edges straighten momentarily under pressure and break away from the loop. The hooks instantly reform, ready to grip again if it comes into contact with a loop. The strong nylon loops don't tear or break so they continue to grip and peel apart indefinitely.

It was interesting to learn how the idea of this tape was born. Its inventor, George de Mestral of Switzerland, returned from a hunting trip covered with burrs. Why did they stick to his clothing and his dog? Intrigued, he studied the burrs under a microscope. They had hundreds of tiny hooks that fastened onto his clothing threads and animal hairs. It started him on a relentless eight-year search for a method of duplicating nature. This was followed by many more years of research and development to perfect the precise textile material available today. Because it is jam, snag and rustproof and is durable, washable, lightweight and adjustable, it found many uses in many industries.

Its application to photographic displays is comparatively recent. For easier application to walls, panels and photographs, Velcro tapes come with precoated adhesive backs. They can be glued to paper materials, wood, glass, steel and other surfaces. Hook and pile tapes are packaged on different reels, in different colors and in various widths from %ths to two inches wide. Photos should be mounted on a substantial backing for exhibition purposes before at-taching a section of the tape.

Miss Marple To Return In Mystery

The star of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new mystery-thriller, "Murder Ahoy," starting Wednesday at the Broadmoor, is, of course, Margaret Rutherford, who once again brings her inimitable comedy characterization to Miss Marple, the famous female sleuth.

But another star is H.M.S. Battledore, the ship on which the latest murders are commited and solved by the old lady

In "Murder Ahoy," H.M.S. Battledore is a British naval training ship run by the Cape of Good Hope Youth Reclamation Trust, whose avowed aim is to "put backbone into young jellyfish."

In the plot, written by David Pursall and Jack Seddon, Miss Marple becomes a trustee in succession to her uncle and, once aboard the ship, discovers her first body — suffering from an overdose of cyanide taken in snuff. The film's costar, Lionel Jeffries, enacts the cunning Captain Rhumstone of the Battledore

HMS Battledore is, in fact, two ships. The forward end is part of an actual cadet training vessel afloat on the Thames, which was loaned to the film company for one week. The aft was built on two sound stages at MGM's British Studios after designs by art director William

The studio sets, on which practically half of the action in "Murder Ahoy" took place, were mounted on six-foot rostrums which covered 10,000 square feet of space on one sound stage, comprising the captain's cabin, library, sickbay, corridors and entrances to holds, and another 15,000 square feet on a sound stage, consisting of a quarter-deck, poop-deck and deckhouse ward-

Designer Andrews, who has been in the movie industry for more than thirty years, moved to the studio's back lot to construct a ship's mast weighing two-and-a-half tons for an unusual camera shot up to the yard-arm of the Battledore.

"It had to be guyed off with shrouds and rigging to hold it as erect as though it were on an actual ship," he explained. "And, even more important for our murder-mystery purposes in 'Murder Ahoy,' it had to be strong enough to hand a body from the yard-arm!"

Showing for the last four days, Warren Beatty and Jean Seberg are starred in "Lilith."

TURKEY TROUBLE

Let's face it Dad, Thursday is the day when your carving eye and knife has to be the sharpest. But what happens if you're new to this father business and have never carved a bird before? You start hacking away and before you know it, you're liable to find yourself with a kind of dry stew instead of neat slices of good old Tom Turkey. Well, Leisuretime sympathises with you and on pages 18 and 19 you'll find the correct way to carve a turkey. WALLY TOWN-or provides the demonstration and RUSTY MITCH-ELL the commentary on to carve a turkey. Rusty also contributed a story on how Thanksgiving ne a holiday and for Mom an idea for a cheery holiday salad or two, all in today's Leisuretime. * *

Pajama Party Reunites Two Young Stars

It's reunion time for two of the most prominent alumni of Disney when Annette Funicello and Tommy Kirk unite in "Pa-jama Party" which starts here at 11:30 p.m. at the Chief Theatre. The show begins a regular run Wednesday.

It'll be the first time the youngsters have appeared together in a musical comedy as Annette stars in her fourth such production for A. I. P. The color and Panavision film also stars Elsa Lanchester, Harvey Lembeck, Jesse White, Jody McCrea, Ben Lessy, Donna Loren, Susan Hart, Bobbi Shaw, Candy Johnson and special guest stars Bus-ter Keaton and Dorothy La-

As she demonstrated in the earlier "Bikini Beach," Annette is an exceptional dancer and she gets several chances to trip the light fantastic in "Pajama Party." The five foot three-inch, 110-pound, brown-eyed, brownhaired beauty also has several Hit Parade-destined song numbers and she gets in some difficult dramatic licks in the musical comedy.

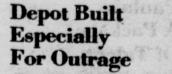

Annette was born on October 22, 1942, in Utica, New York, and migrated with her family to California when she was four. Annette's father owns an auto repair business while her attractive mother runs the family home in the San Fernando Valley where the actress lives with her younger brothers, Joe, 18, and Michael, 12.

Her earliest recollection is wanting to be a ballerina and she started dance study at five. When she won a beauty contest for a local "Miss Willow Lake" at the age of nine, she also started modeling.

At thirteen her big break came when Annette won a lead role in "Ballet versus Jive" outdoor show. She was spotted by none other than Walt Disney who promptly signed her as one of the original Mouseketeers on his "Mickey Mouse Club" TV show.

The personable Annette soon was singled out from the other 23 Mouseketeers as a favorite of the nation's young viewers and she was cast in other Disney features and later was set in her own TV series, "Anin her own TV series, nette." Meanwhile she received her education, both primary and high school, at the Disney Studio School.

With her 21st year, Annette's exclusive contract with Disney got her at a grown - up role with American International Pictures in the hit musical "Beach Party," opposite Frankie Avalon.

The work order read simply enough: "Build one 80-year-old train depot on Sound Stage 30."

Academy Award-winning art director Tambi Larson knew it would not be as simple as it read. He knew, for instance, that the depot would have to appear to be on the desert. He also knew it would be built over a ten-foot-deep tank and that it days of filming.

The motion picture for which the depot was required is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's explosive and controversial new drama. "The Outrage," next attraction at the Cooper theatre, starring Paul Newman, Laurence Harvey, Claire Bloom and Edward G. Robinson. The company had been filming on locations near Chatsworth, California, and Tuscon, Arizona, and had now returned to the MGM's Cullver City studios for the final segment of the production.

Larson's first problem was the desert. To simulate it, he covered the gigantic sound stage floor with sand and planted vegetation "borrowed" from Arizona's vast landscape. Next he built the ancient train depot. He knew that if he used old boards, the colors would mismatch and there was a possibility of their splitting. The answer was to build a brand new station and "age" it.

On completion, the depot stood 44-feet high and 68-feet in length. A fine building, but a bit too fine. Men with axes began to rip and tear at the new walls. These movie artisans, utilizing skills it had taken them years to perfect, created a transformation it would have taken millions of termites to perform over a long period of Next, painters moved in, covering the building with streaks of rust-red, black, grey, dusttan and several other colors that blended into each other. An observer could now begin to feel the years multiplying on the face of the depot that only a short time ago had been a new address.

The painters sprayed the windows with an instant-drying dust solution. They then gave a call to Martin Ritt, director of "The Outrage," to perform the final coup de gras — that of breaking the glass of several of the depot windows.

After a few more touchesa broken bench, a sag in the loading dock—the MGM construction experts (or should we say "destruction") stood back and surveyed their job. The depot looked not only eighty but possibly one-hundred years

DON'T PUSH ME AROUND - Two Desert Tortoises fight a battle for the favor of a hard shell lady in a suspenseful scene from "The Living Desert," which opens Wednesday at the Peak. One of the technicolor features in Walt Disney's "True Life Adventure Festival."

'Desert' Is Immense In Scope

Immense in scope, the sub-ject matter of Walt Disney's most honored True-Life Adventure feature, "The Living Des-ert," opening Wednesday at the Peak Theatre, brings to the screen an array of strange desert personalities. The film ranges from starkly realistic moments of high drama to scenes of breath-taking loveliold. And the entire process had taken just under four hours.

However, the job was not finished. There was a train depot but no tracks. Moreover, the background of the scene still remined the four walls of MGM's Sound Stage 30.

From the paint department came a cyclerama, a long, rolled canvas painting which when unfurled, gave the illusion of hundreds of miles of desert and mountains. The canvases were unrolled and connected in a rectangle with curved corners. Then wooden tracks were laid and connected with the tracks painted on the canvas, giving the illusion of their disappearing into the distance.

Now came the matter of "rain," for in the depot sequence, Edward G. Robinson, William Shatner and Howard Da Silva use the train stop as a refuge from the driving rain.

Men from the studio's plumbing department moved into the rafters high above the sound stage floor and began to lay the 38 pipes it would take to form the rain machine. Working from a master control unit, any one pipe, a group of them, on to spray any amount of wet.

Then special arc lights were brought in for the rain scenes. These were exceptional lights in that they gave off a white-hot flash which looked like the illumination from lightning. Stage 30 had now been transformed into what is known in movie parlance as a "hot set." Director Ritt could now move in his cameras. The simple order, "Build one 90-year-old train depot," had been executed. The entire job took exactly eight days!

Tilefish Beauty MIAMI, Fla. — The speckled green and yellow tilefish is a beautiful creature, says the Mi-ami Seaquarim's Capt. Bill Gray. However, because it is a fish which lives at depths of ness as the barren desert breaks into flamboyant bloom, with a wealth of incidents in which stalwart courage and high hearted rollicking humor alternate.

Captured by the naturalistcameramen whose job it was to seek out and photograph the hidden life of the desert, the Technicolor feature was compiled and developed from thousands of feet of film garnered by top scientists whose specialty is the little known fastness of the Great American Desert. Heading the crew was the team of N. Paul Kenworthy Jr. and Robert H. Crandall. The former, a graduate of the University of California at Los Angeles, started his study of the western desert as a university thesis, then continued his activities for a two-year period with Crandall as a Disney project. Other co-adventurers of the imaginative producer were Jack Couffer, Stewart V. Jewell, Tad Nichols and Don Arien.

"The Living Desert" includes such sequences as a rough-house party thrown by band of rodents, and goes on to re-veal how the situation turns into a brawl as personal scores are evened up under the general excitement. The habits of a valiant mother kangaroo rat raising her tiny brood to be good, upstanding citizens of the desert is no more delightful than the group of young coati mundi falling on a vulture egg, stolen by their bandit elders and brought back to the nest for co-operative omelet-in-the-

How the determined pepsis wasp faces the dangers of the tarantula in order to stock the larder which will feed her young is as exciting as the battle of a couple of lumbering tortoises for the affection of a local charmer. The fate of an amorous beetle vies with the mating dance of two scorpions, while the foolish antics of the round-tailed ground squirrels adds a dab of humor to Nature's gigantic canvas.

Ending with breath-taking scenes of the desert's flash flood which turns the burning miles of wasteland into a tumultous Niagara of destruction, the film shows the carpet of floral magnificence which springs up as the waters re-

The musical score accenting, interpreting and pacing the film, is under the inspired direction of Paul Smith, composer and conductor of the True-Life Adventure series. Not only is it built against a background theme suitable to the general atmosphere and locale, but it must follow musically the movements of individual creatures which are Nature's actors. And as each occupies the screen, the music must underscore his antics focusing attention on him as an individual and on his place in the busy wilderness in which he lives.

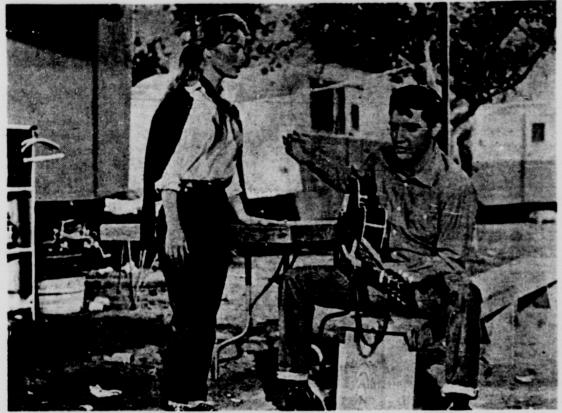

"The Living Desert" in magnificent Technicolor, is a sparkling invitation from the strange and eerie creatures who share their world with us. A Buena Vista release.

Talent Not

Temperament Rates High off the set. However, to show Shelley Winters would never rate high in a popularity poll sponsored by Hollywood producers and directors because of her unpredictable and explosive temperament, but she'd be near the top of the poll when it came to quality performance ratings judging from her latest per-formance ratings in Jos-eph E. Levine's "A House Is Not A Home," now showing at the Chief Theatre.

During the production of this Embassy pictures release, in which Academy Award-win ning Shelley Winters plays Polly Adler, New York's most famous madam, she outdid her past record for kicking up a storm. Browbeating producer, bulldozing directors, aging press agents and tossing newspaper men off the set are all in day's work for Shelley, but one afternoon in a tantrum she had a noted columnist, a magazine writer, an AP photographer and the silm's press agent all thrown the other side of Shelley's character, that night she called each one and apologized. Everyone finds it hard to remain mad at Shelley because they respect her for what she represents as an actress. Actually the lesser people who work with Shelley are her real fans because toward them she is always kind and helpful. In "A House Is Not A Home," many of the ten beauties cast as Polly's girls had never had a speaking role in a movie. When Miss Winters saw that they were unsure of themselves and nervous, she took them aside on her own time and taught them to read their lines.

When Shelley is not sure of herself, she rants and raves even more, but once she has a scene down pat, she is calm and contrite and winds up taking the entire crew to lunch.

A product of Brookly, Shelley is rated one of Hollywood's most erudite and best read actresses despite the termination of her education after high school, because her family needed her paycheck.

The first thing she did was change her name from the unglamorous Shirley Schifft to Shelley Winters.

Her first important role was the unfortunate factory worker who becomes pregnant and is murdered in "A Place In The Sun," the adaptation of "An American Tragedy." After this although producers shuddered at the mention of her name, they tripped over each other trying to sign her for their pictures.

Hiring Shelley Winters was something like the old joke about the man hitting himself over the head constantly with a hammer, because if felt so good when he stopped. But it meant a superb performance and a boxoffice smash.

It was her role of the middleaged housekeeper in "The Diary of Anne Frank," which won her an Oscar and led to her being selected out of more than 100 stars to play Polly Adler in "A House Is Not A Home.

Henry Orient Starts Here At 8th Street

"They laughed when I sat down at the piano!"

This line, made famous by the advertising of a music correspondence school, could well e been uttered by England's great funny man Peter Sellers in his role as the concert pianist Henry Orient in Pan Art's hilarious DeLuxe - Panavision presentation for United Artists release "The World of Henry Orient," opening Wednesday at the 8th Street Theatre.

Only, he can add, "and they kept on laughing and laughing. Because Peter plays a pianist long on hair but short on talent, a fact which does not keep two smitten teen-agers, played by the new and sensational Tippy Walker and Merrie Spaeth. from developing a cursh on him, with disastrous results.

"The World of Henry Orient" is from the novel by the same name by Nora Johnson and the screen treatment was developed by she and her famous father Nunnally Johnson.
The second feature, "Rhino" is all out action starring Robert Culp and is in color.

Paula's A Package Of Talent

Talent, versatility and pul-chritude all rolled up into an exciting female package . . . that's a pocket description of lovely blonde Paula Stewart who makes her film debut as a star of American International's "Diary of a Bachelor."

Paula had amassed an enviable reputation and list of comedy, acting and singing credits in television, Broadway musical comedy, nightclubs and even opera prior to her being cast in the spicy comedy now showing at the Peak Theatre.

She was born in Chicago, with a background that augured a show business future . . . her mother was an ex-Ziegfield Follies showgirl, her father a physician. After schooling at Midwestern convents and girl schools, and a period at Northwestern University, Paula auditioned for a roadshow and was signed as understudy to the lead.

Her next stop was New York and she made it on Broadway in the show "Seventeen" with a succession of bit shows of every type following. Her fa-vorite role is that of Polly Peachum in "The Three Pen-ny Opera" which gave her a chance to sing as well as act. Most recent Broadway hit for Paula was with Lucille Ball in the musical comedy hit, "Wildcat." She also appeared in nighclubs in Las Vegas and Miami, mostly with a comedian named Jack Carter who also happens to be her husband. Her opera appearance was as Mimi in "La Boheme" at the New York City Center.

She and Jack travel much together with numerous appearances abroad to entertain American armed forces personnel. They live in a seven room pent-house overlooking New York City's Central Park.

New Vampire Unleashed In New Show

Starting with "Dracula" and going through the variety of sequels made of this classic terror film, vampires have had a justly deserved reputation as the ultimate personification of terror, as blood-drinking and fearful creatures - the undead who rise from their coffins at night to prey upon unsuspecting citizens.

Now, with American Interna-tional's "Black Sabbath," a new kind of vampire is unleashed upon the fictional world of motion pictures - the "wurdalak." Wurdalaks are much like the old-fashioned kind of vampire. . .they rise from coffins, walk the night, drink blood through dual incision in the neck, are imperishable save those that have a stake or sword driven through the heart, are eternally damned as lost souls, do not see themselves in mirrors and they reside in East-Central Europe.

There is one vital and important difference that marks the tant difference that marks the wurdalak from the ordinary, common garden variety of vampire. . . the wurdalaks drink ONLY the blood of those they love . . . and they cannot be denied this end. What's more each Victimized loved one in turn becomes a wurdalak doomed to carry out the same mit. ed to carry out the same mis-

Chief Wurdalak in "Black Sab-bath," which opens Wednesday at the Starlite theatre, is Boris "Frankenstein" Karloff. Sup porting him in the color and wide screen terror chiller are Mark Damon, Michele Me and a large cast of "Wurdalak" vampires.

The second honor hit, "The Evil Eye" stars John Saxon.

Blue Dolphins Opens Here On Sunday

Because the actual locale of the story is now used by the U. S. Navy and is restricted to authorized personnel only, it took more than a month to find a suitable location for the Universal-Robert B. Radnitz color production, "Island of the Blue Dolphins," coming Sun-day to the 8th Street Theatre.

The picture is based on the John Newbery Medal award novel by Scott O'Dell, which he developed from a true life experience of a girl Robinson Crusoe who lived alone for 18 years on San Nicholas Island off the coast of Santa Barbara, California, from 1835 to 1853. She became known in the legends of the time as The Lost Woman of the San Nicholas Island.

After traversing the Pacific coast-line for 1,500 miles from Baja California to Vancouver James B. Clark, finally settled on a spot at Anchor Bay, California, 175 miles north of San Francisco. After deciding on the area, they were able to locate the 18 different sites for

New Yawkers Had Gomer

Talking Like a Fool BY DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) - Well, how it was was this way, friends and neighbors. This little old country boy from down Alabama way was working up in that nest of evil called New Yawk. And you know what them New Yawkers tried to do to that little old country boy from Sylacauga? (That's about halfway between Mignon and Gantts Quarry).

They tried to take his good clean Alabama speech patterns away from him, that's what they tried to do. Imagine!

This boy-Jim Nabors was his name, the same feller on tellyvision now as Gomer Pyle, U. S. M. C. — Well, this boy Jim was working for the United Nations Trusteeship Council. Sounds pretty high-falutin', but those Sylacauga boys are pretty sharp.

Anyhow, Jim went back home for vacation one time. And he walked into the house and he said to his ma and his pa, "Hello, mother, and hello, father." He said it in a deep, resonant voice and there was a distinct northern tone.

Mrs. Nabors - she has her head screwed on right, you bet you-well, she said to her boy, "Jim, stop talking like a fool."

Since then, Jim Nabors has had the good sense to talk with that good old Alabama speech he was born with. And because of that, he's fixing to make a Pyle of money.

"I tried to lose my drawl when I was in New York that time," Jim says. "But after my folks gave it to me that time,

I figured I'd stay the way I am. I'm sure glad."

Nabors' Gomer Pyle U. S. M. C. (that stands for Usual Series Mit Comedy) is one of the more successful of this season's rookies. This naturally pleases Nabors. But it has yet to affect his standard of living.

"I have a small two - room house," he says. "I live alone, so it's fine for me. But when my mother and my sister and my nieces and nephews come to visit, it gets crowded. We put pallets down on the floor and we take turns at the bath-

Y Nursery Gives Mothers Time for Fun, Exercise

"Absolutely anybody can learn to swim at the YMCA," Mrs. Maria Haase, 66, who took her first swimming lesson one year ago, emphatically told a group of younger women who had just become members of this United Fund agency.

To make it possible for more young women to join gym, trimnastic or swim activities during the day, the YMCA has opened a nursery in the Youth Center at no cost to members who leave their children. Evening classes are available at the Y for working women but the nursery is not open at night.

Mrs. Haase surprised her three children and eight grandchildren a year ago when she made up her mind to take swimming lessons

"When I received my beginner certificate, my oldest son framed it for me," she said.

"I swim at least twice a week at the Y with the encouragement of my doctor who assured me swimming is good for me even though I have a heart condition," she said.

While all age groups are represented in the YMCA program, the majority of women members are mothers, many of them with pre-school children. To accommodate these children, the Y's Mennettes decided to adopt the nursery as a club pro-

Because the nursery supervisors are volunteers from the club, there is no fee to mothers using the facility. Equipped with a crib for the tiniest participant and a variety of play equipment for toddlers and the kindergarten set, the nursery stands ready to do a booming business.

It is open during the Tuesday and Thursday morning classes and the Monday and Thursday afternoon activities for women.

According to Jim Maul, physical director at the YMCA, the popularity of the women's program has increased through the years. Evening classes are usually filled to capacity, while openings remain in the day time classes and recreational swim, gym, trampoline and trimnastics. It is hoped that the nursery will make it possible for many more women to participate.

Information on the program and membership fees may be obtained at the YMCA office or by calling 633-4643.

There's Nothing Simple About Moving a Station

By DON BENNET

the 6th of this month. The time 9:40 p.m. Six men huddled in the KLST Stereo-FM studios and offices at 8021/2 E. Fillmore. Schematics, tools, wires, and boxes are strewn around the floor.

"It should only take a few someone said, "We should be on again in the morn-

This was the first scene in what we thought would be a simple, well-planned move of a transmitter and studio for better coverage. We thought we had considered every aspect of the move, had a First Class Radiotelephone engineer, truck and two station wagons, and six strong men to help we signed the station off the Records, meters, papers, tapes, turntables, typewriters, and tape recorders were quickly loaded into the waiting vehicles. Hammers, wrenches, screw drivers, and wire cutters dismanteled the console, stereo generator, and transmitter. About three o'clock in the morning and many grunts and groans later, most of the important things had been moved. The only remaining big item was the antenna assembly. Someone would have to scale the old tower and disconnect the elements and power divider early in the morning when the sun came up. Everyone went home ex-

Because of slight delay in getting a truck with a wrench, the elements weren't taken down from the tower until late afternoon. As we got a bite of supper we noticed that it was getting a little dark outside. This meant that we would be off the air for a full day because no one could climb in the dark to put up the elements on the new tower.

About half of the original crew worked Sunday afternoon finishing a list of instructions that the engineer had left. Most of these were done when someone asked:

"Where's the engineer . . . it will be dark soon . . . he better put up the antenna elements."

"Oh, I think he had an important date or something . .I don't think he'll make it this afternoon."

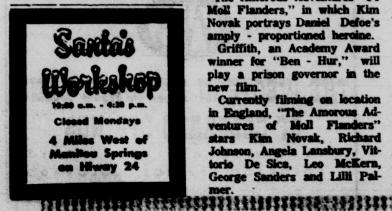

"Oh no! -The second full day is lost . . . all day Sunday. Monday morning as I'm three fourths of the way up on a wind-blown tower -the first one I've ever climbed-a man yells up at me:

"Say, can you come down here for a minute. You can't have a radio station in this

"But this transmitter shack has been here for years . . it's older than the zoning laws."

"Well it might be alright to have the transmitter there, but one of your competitors is complaining about this console and equipment ."

"But our offices are still over on Fillmore. This is where all the business is transacted . . . what difference does it make where the controls of the trans-

"Say it's awful hard for me to talk to you on that tower . can you please talk to me in After much talk and figuring we decided the best thing to do would be to move the console and controls back to the business office on Fillmore. This would take two high fidelity telephone line-from 50 to 15,000 cycles frequency response-rather than up to the usual 3,000 cycle of the average telephone. By this time it was Tuesday and I stopped down to the Mountain States Tel and Tel office "Well we'll try to give you the best service we can" one person said, "But don't forget . tomorrow is a holiday.

Thursday morning I stopped back in the office and was informed that probably this type of high fidelity circuit over such a great distance might take a major construction job. It might take a week or more. Being off the air a day or two is disastrous for a radio station, . . .but a week!

About this time we would have sold the whole station for 25 cents and a copy of "How to Make a Million Dollars in Real Estate," then someone came up with the bright idea of taking the console out of the business office where it had been moved over the holiday back into the trailer and ask some businessman's permission near the transmitter to use his commercially zoned property. This way the high fidelity telephone line would have to be strung only a few hundred feet . . . a few hours

Just when we thought we had all the problems licked the landlords of the property where the transmitter was commented:-

"Say, a friend of a friend told us that you hold wild parties at your radio station."

"That's absolutely not true," I said, "We're so busy we don't even have time to stop for a coke most of the time."

"Well, I didn't believe the old busy body anyway . . .but if you do ever have any I wish you'd invite us."

At this writing our signal is beaming out loud and clear and covering areas - Manitou Springs, Colorado City, downtown Colorado Springs, Southgate, and others where there had been problems before.

We understand that KSSS is to move soon into their $50,000 new studios east of town. Being the strongest AM station in town signal-wise and having an experienced and talented engineer-ing staff under Jay Blakesly they probably won't have any trouble . . .but we wish them good luck!

Elvis Is Back In Late Show Here Tonight

Get with it baby. You may think you're hip, but do you know what a felagee is? A grab joint? A lot louse? There's only one way to find out-by seeing the colorful new Elvis Presley musical "Roustabout" which will have a special advance showing tonight at 11:15 at the Ute Theatre, "Roustabout" will begin its regular engagement at the Ute following the current attraction, "Malamondo".

In "Roustabout," Elvis finds himself fighting, singing and loving his way through an action-packed story of life in the tinsel world of a carnival. It is a world of glittering midways with its own unique language. A hot dog stand is a grab joint, a non paying customer is a lot louse and a hotshot is a felagee. It is a world where anything can happen to Elvisfrom knock-down karate style chilling motorcycle fights, spills, to love affairs with two gorgeous giris. . . at the same time. One is the beautiful Cathy (Joan Freeman), daughter of the carnival boss; the other, the exotic fortune teller Mijanou (Sue Ane Langdon) who sees Elvis in her future no matter what he has to say about it.

Against this spectacular backsongs, many of which are already on the best-seller lists. Yets, it's the old freewheeling Elvis at his best, but with a new stature gained through almost ten years as a singing and acting star.

Elvis also receives excellent support from the rest of the top "Roustabout" cast. Barbara Stanwyck, nominated four times for the Academy Award, boiled but good-hearted carnival owner. Leif Erickson, direct from a key role in "The Carpetbaggers," appears as an em-bittered carvinal manager. Joan Freeman and Sue Ane Lang fie for the audiences vote as

In their industrial capacities, Rennie was manager of a rope factory at Wakefield, England, while Pate was an accountant for a brewery and later for an appliance store in Sydney, Australia.

FAC Adds Two Paintings To Permanent Collection

Two exceptionally fine paintings have been added to the permanent collection of the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center representing the first purchase from the Ethel Carlton bequest.

The paintings, both impressionistic landscapes, are: "View of the Teton Range, Moose, Wyoming" by Albert Bierstadt (1830-1902) and "Country Landscape" by Ernest Lawson (1873-1939).

Purchase of the two works was made from the Carlton fund willed to the Fine Arts Center by the Late Mrs. Ethel Carlton, long-time Colorado Springs resident and Fine Arts Center patron.

Both artists are widely known and represented in collections throughout the country. Both also had a particular attraction to the Western United States. Lawson particularly had a close association with Colorado Springs, having taught at the Broadmoor Art Academy in the 1920s and painted a number of small canvases of Cheyenne Mountain and the mines at Crip-

Although he travelled considerably, most of Lawson's work was produced in the neighbor-hood of New York City and nearby. It is probable that "Country Landscape" was done in the country of New York or Conneticut. The date of the picture is uncertain because Lawson quite consistently maintained his impressionist technique throughout his career.

Lawson was a member of the group formally known as "The Independents," but much better known as "The Eight." The group comprised Henri, Luks, Glachens, Sloan and Shinn, all originally from Philadelphia, and Davies, Lawson and Prendergast from New York.

During his career Lawson received many major honors and prizes and his work is to be seen in every major museum collection in the country.

Bierstadt, who returned to his brithplace of Germany to study after coming to this country as a baby, loved the spectacular scenery of the West and painted it in the popular grandiose manner of the time. These pictures were immensely successful and Bierstadt received as much as $35,000 for a single canvas. The Teton Range painting, probably done on Bierstadt's first trip to the West in 1858-59, is an example of the small, acutely obscured renderings of landscape that much of Bierstadt's present fame rests.

It was in 1858 that Bierstadt took the first of many trips to explore and paint the great unknown country. He joined the expedition of Gen. Frederick W. Lander which was seeking a railroad route from the Mississippi to San Francisco.

'Biggest Slum on Earth' Is Charged by Architect

GOD'S OWN JUNKYARD — By Peter Blake — 142 pages —Holt, Rinehart and Winston — $4.50—Reviewed by Lorraine Burgess—Peter Blake, one of America's angrier young men has written this "deliberate attack upon all those who have already befouled a large portion of this country for private gain, and who are engaged in befouling the rest."

Blake himself labels it a muckraking book "because there seems to be so much muck around that needs to be raked so that this country may be made fit again to live in."

The author extolls the natural beauty of our land, its mountain ranges as spectacular as the Dolomites, its jungles as colorful as the Amazon, its lake-studded forests as lovely as those of Finland; cliffs that rival the French Riviera, in fact he says it is one of the most thrilling geographies presented to man. This in heritance, Blake

This in heritance, Blake claims, we are about to turn into "the biggest slum on earth." It is "a disgrace of such vast proportions that only a concerted national effort can now hope to return physical America to the community of civilized nations."

Under direct attack in Blake's book, which he states was not written in anger, but in fury, is the billboard industry, the politicians, the government agencies which write crippling regulations, and the public, all latterday vandals who no longer care, or no longer care enough.

Cited with disapproval is a president of an outdoor advertising company who was quoted as saying that "billboards a re the art gallery of the public." Also quoted is the billboard intustry's own manual stating that billboards must compete for attention with "vehicular traffic, traffic signals or other outdoor designs. To counteract such competition every bit of the poster space must be made to work hard."

A New York Thruway study indicated that there were more than three times as many accidents per mile on those stretches of roadway where "driver-inattention" was encouraged by billboards and similar eyesores.

The book reports on a Sunday morning escapade in June, 1958, when "persons unknown" in nearby New Mexico sawed down seven billboards along a rather handsome highway leading from Santa Fe to Los Alamos. Because the signs were located on Indian Pueblo Land it was difficult to determine what law enforcement agency should investigate the outrage. ciu support of the terrorists unknown. Two complaints were lodged. One that the lawbreakers had not cut down enough signs, and two, the plot interfered with a mass burning of billboards scheduled for later in

Pat Brown, governor of California said that "when a man throws an empty cigarette package from an automobile — he is liable to a fine of $50. When a man throws a billboard across a view he is liable to be richly rewarded. I see little difference between the damage done by these two litter bugs."

these two litter bugs."

Blake, in subsequent chapters and in 157 devastating photos deals with the uglification brought on by suburban sprawl, FHA appraisers, tax structures which penalize good building, jazzy architecture, litter, and automobile junkyards.

He urges more stringent zoning laws, a better tax policy, and more important, creative acts and genuine leadership on the part of those capable of creating a new kind of city and a new kind of country.

Let us hope that "God's Oen Junkyard" is strong enough in its damnation of ugliness to arouse the American public to demand the beauty in their country which they should have inherited.

Note about the author: Peter Blake was managing editor of the Architectural Forum, which recently has been closed, and has been assigned to Fortune magazine, which is planning to devote several issues a year to architecture. He is also a licensed architect.

LINCOLN AND THE GETTS-BURG ADDRESS — Edited by Allen Nevins — University of Illinois Press — $2.95 — Reviewed by R. B. Murray — This week marks the 100th anniversary of Lincoln's speech dedicating the cemetery at Gettysburg Battlefield, Pennsylvania. President Lincoln was not the main speaker that day and his dedicatory words took only two and one half minutes.

It has been said that the mark of a great man is the ability to detect the feeling of the people and to implement this feeling with deeds and words. Abraham Lincoln obviously had this ability which is epitemized by his address at Gettysburg as in no other singular event.

In this volume the University of Illinois Press has brought together a number of commemorative papers by such highly qualified people as John Dos Passos, Arthur Layman Goodhart, Reinhold Niebuhr, Robert Lowell, Paul H. Douglas and David C. Mearns. The papers are edited by Allen Nevins and deal with all phases of the life of Lincoln and the circumstances surrounding the address.

It is a small volume as books go, completely consistent with its subject matter.

It is recommended.

CITADEL, MARKET AND

ALTAR — By Spencer Heath—
Liberal — $6 — Following an analysis of previous civilizations, Health presents the thesis that the voluntary free market has provided all societal progress and that the state, with the power of forcible taxation, has been the retarder. He concludes that the state's expropriation, "however well intended or even necessary under the present state of knowledge, nonetheless inhibits the societal process, destroys values, and brings on widespread distress, recurrent wars and social decline."

Heath contendts that it will be the workings of the market that will provide the permanent way out of a civilization of depressions and wars. "The voluntary contractual relationships of ownership of property and of services exchanged thereby on the basis of agreement and constant need only be extended into the field of community property and services."

services."

He sees the society of the future as one in which all services will be performed on a contractual basis, as opposed to the political and coercive. He says that the proper understanding of the free market "will render obvious the profits and the advantages to all of extending this proprietary public service, contractually performed, into the field of public protection against official and political, as well as criminal, invasions of personal liberty and property and of the right of society to exist."

Boulder Hoe-Down Turned Into a Happy Snow-Down

In spite of the snowstorm on Saturday, most of the people who had tickets attended the Hoedown (Snow-down) in Boulder. It continued to snow all night in Boulder so several couples spent the night with friends or relatives and traveled the slick roads by daylight. Memorial Center was full to capacity and Frank Lane's calling was the best yet.

At the Circle B's regular dance at the Carriage Stop the turkey was won by Larry and Eileen Perotti.

Several couples from Colorado Springs attended the Boots and Calico dance in Pueblo with Selmer Hovland of New Mexico calling.

Breckenridge Ski Patrol Meets Here

The Breckenridge Ski Patrol, a volunteer association, will hold a business meeting here at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, in the Silver Lounge of the Acacia Hotel.

The Breckenridge Patrol, an affiliate of the National Ski Patrol System (N.S.P.S.), has members residing in both the Denver and Colorado Springs areas, and the meeting scheduled for Colorado Springs is the first of a number scheduled away from the Denver area on an alternating basis. The officers and majority of the members of the Patrol from both cities plan to attend the meeting here, and interested skiers, both junior (15) and adult (over 18) are invited to attend, become acquainted and learn about the N.S.P.S.

Members of the Breckenridge Patrol devote a large portion of their skiing time to assisting skiers in the Breckenridge area. As an affiliate of the N.S.P.S., this Patrol's members must meet the rigid N.S.P.S. requirements for proficiency in skiing and first aid training. Each member has training. Each member has completed an American Red Cross advanced first aid course which has been supplemented annually by eight hours of classroom refresher, and has passed a difficult skiing and toboggan handling test. In addition, a member of the N.S.P.S. must demonstrate a real interest in the humanitarian work assumed by the volunteer patrol8's are invited to a special dance at the Carriage Stop next Tuesday so the regular dance at the Eagles Lodge will be held at the Carriage Stop.

'A Thousand Clowns' Set Next Month at FA Center

"A Thousand Clowns" wil convert the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center to a circus of laughs Dec. 7-12.

The Civic Players are cast in Nebish-creator Herb Gardner's comedy, which recently finished a successful run on Broadway with Jason Robards, Jr. as lead-

Lord of the local buffoons is Charles Roades, USAF, as the bachelor uncle, Murray Burns, who is left to make a non-conforming attempt to rear his precocious nephew, Nick, played by Bruce Turtis.

Co-merrymakers in supporting leads are Miss Katherine Caldwell and Howard Hitchens, USAF, as respective social work ers Sandra Markowitz and Leo Herman. Joseph J. Gramza plays Arnold Burns, and Kieth D. Nelson, Albert Amundson.

Weary of writing a cheap television comedy, the uncle at large in New York City enacts all the non-conformity he has always just dreamed about be-

Standing in the middle of Park Ave. at the dawn's early light and yelling, "All right, all you rich people; everybody out in the street for volleyball," for example ,sounds the alarm for investigation by the social service team.

But soon there is a turnabout in problem solving. He might even marry the girl social worker. Or who knows what else?

All that is certain is the play is "unfailingly amusing," as the New York Times reported.

Tickets may be purchased at the box office for $2. All seats are reserved.

Roades' previous theatrical experience was with The Cadet Dialectic Society at West Point, The Pacific Grove Little Theater at Pacific Grove, Calif., the Lakewood Players at Tacoma, Wash., the Montgomery Little Theater at Montgomery, Ala. tle Civic Theater

GAZETTE TELEGRAPH 15 SATURDAY, NOV. 21, 1964

On Nov. 28 the Dallas Symphony Orchestra will inaugurate a new series of concerts to be called the "Promenade Pops" and to be presented in the spectacular Great Hall of the Apparel Mart.

Guest conductor for the first of these concerts will be Arthur Fiedler, conductor since 1930 of the celebrated Boston Pops after which the Dallas series is patterned. Like its forerunner in Boston, the Dal-las "Promenade Pops" will combine the elements of tuenful music, drinks and food. The entire 92-piece orchestra will be utilized in the popular series.

Joining Fiedler as soloist for the Nov. 28 concert will be Monte Hill Davis, pianist, in a per-formance of the Tchaikovsky Piano Concerto No. 1. also included in the program will be Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance," works by Glinka, Schoenherr and Press, and selections from "My Fair Lady," "Hello, Dolly!" and "The Music

Tickets for the "Promenade Pops" will be available in two categories, those at tables in the traditional pops concert fashion and general admission tickets for customary auditorium

Society Plans to Grow 'Show Garden' in City

The Horticulture Art Society plans to make a small plot north of Mesa Road and Glen Avenue one of the most beautiful spots in the region.

The area is just south of the City Parks and Recreation Department greenhouse.

Novak Wig Historical

Kim Novak's beautiful red gold wig which she wears in her latest picture, "The Amorous Adventures of Moll Flanders," has a very personal history.

It is made from Kim's mother's hair and it was given to Kim years ago when she decided to cut her tresses short. The lustrous locks have been treasured by Kim all this time, and in texture and shade exactly resemble her own. As Moll Flanders in this lusty comedy, a wig was required and Kim preferred to use her mother's locks which were dyed red for the event.

The Amorous Adventures of Moll Flanders" is a Winchester Film Productions presentation in Panavision and Technicolor for release by Paramount. Produced by Marcel Hellmand and directed by Terence Young, the film stars Miss Novak, Richard Johnson, Angela Lansbury, Leo McKern, George Sanders and Lilli Palmer.

She has money and she enjoys spending it. After all, it isn't every girl who can take a pink chiffon scarf into a Cadillac agency and say, "Make me up a convertible this color." But Ann-Margret did that.

She went shopping in Chinatown and came back with a 500-year-old jade necklace. Her love of antique jewelry is a strange counterpoint to her modernity in other areas—she adores the Watusi and the Swim, those alteged dances of today, and rock-'n'-roll music in general.

GASTRONOMIC TRADITION — Wallace Towner, who operates Towner's Navajo Market, 1528 N. Tejon St., with his brother Warren, kindly agreed to show Leisurtime readers how to carve a Thanksgiving turkey. In the first step, above, Wally begins by cutting the skin that ties the bird's legs together.

An expert with the French chef knife. Wally says for amateurs he recommends the electric carving knife. The turkey here is a 14-pounder. Wally suggests roasting a hen, 16-17 pounds, for it's more economical in that it has more meat per pound of bone. (Gazette Telegraph Photo) section to remove the thigh and its drumstick.

THIRD STEP—Wally now removes the wing almost cutting into the breast area. When serving, the wing is best left whole, he says, as there's not a great deal of meat on this part of the bird.

FOURTH STEP-A practical suggestion . here is when beginning to slice the breast, always place the hand above the knife. If the knife hits a bone in this step, whet the knife before continuing. Here Wally cuts down to the breast bone on the left side.

FIFTH STEP-Holding the left hand over the breast with a firm grip, start on the forward part of the breast and slice into oval shaped pieces. Repeat on remaining side of breast.

SIXTH STEP-Holding leg-thigh section, slice outside of thigh into thin slices for dark-meat devotees. Separate thigh from leg for those who prefer the drumstick.

Thanksgiving Is More Than A Turkey and Cranberries

MARGUERITE MITCHELL PHOTOS BY STAN PAYNE

In 1863, shortly after the Battle of Gettysburg, President Lincoln invited all Americans "and those also at sea and those who are sojourning in foreign lands" to observe a "day of Thanksgiving.'

The 20 Presidents who have followed Lincoln to the White House have echoed his invitation to set apart and observe the holiday "as a day of Thanksgiving and praise to our beneficent Father who dwelleth in the heavens."

Lincoln's proclamation, however, was not his own idea. There was a woman back of it all, an enlightened Bostonian named Josepha Hale, who in 1846 became the editor of Godey's Lady's Book. When Mrs. Hale arrived in staid Philadelphia to take over the editorship of Godey's, she was stricken to find that Thanksgiving was simply a regional New England holiday

The energetic woman, the stays on her whalebone corset tightened for battle, launched her argument for a national celebration. She wrote letters to the State's governors, and to the territories' leaders.

Year after year she kept up the barrage until by 1859, all but two governors had yielded to her zeal. And in 1863, Mrs. Hale reached the President who took time off from the Civil War long enough to issue his proclamation.

Today Thanksgiving is a cherished family tradition; everyone comes home, the married children and their children, the students from school, the aunts and uncles and cousins by the

It's a time for leisurely dining -until we groan as we decline a third or fourth helping of a traditional favorite.

It's a time when late in the evening, when the youngsters are safely tucked away, we gather around the kitchen table to nibble on the leftovers, to drink chilled cider or cold milk.

Then, if we're able, we gather around a roaring fireside; some chestnuts are roasted, a fruit bowl is passed; and someone starts humming an old song.

The family joins in, first an aunt, then grandfather, and the soft voices fill the room, quietly though - not to awaken the children - and America's most persistent gastronomic tradition has come to an end for another year.

And all because of a genteel lady from Boston who pleaded her cause all the way to the White House.

Tired of Green Salads? Try a Holiday Gelatine

After a summer of tossed salads, one begins to weary of this greenery, and such fare is then replaced with gelatine molds, plain and fancy.

With all the pretty molds in the stores today, one can almost have a different one for each of the fall holidays.

Gelatine mixtures are easy, can be prepared in the morning and forgotten until dinner time. Besides, they're pretty and you can blend just about anything from soup to nuts.

We'll try the soup first. This is an old favorite with many women - Tomato Soup Salad -that appeared on the scene a decade or so ago. New brides may not be familiar with this salad, so offer it here for them now.

- TOMATO SOUP SALAD 1 can cream of tomato soup
- 2 three-ounce packages of cream cheese
- 2 envelopes plain gelatine.
- ½ cup cold water tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- ½ cup chopped celery ½ cup chopped green pepper

(or red for a color contrast)

4 cup minced onion Melt the cheese in the undiluted tomato soup in the top of a double boiler. Heat thoroughly and use a beater to achieve a smooth consistency. Soften the gelatine in the cold water and add to soup mixture with other ingredients. Pour into a greased (salad oil) ring mold and place in refrigerator to set. Blend one cup mayonnaise with one teaspoon mustard powder and two teapoons fresh lemon juice, and serve with the

A woman I know has added her own variation to this salad by blending in one cup of freshly boiled shrimps, and serving the salad in individual molds as a luncheon entree.

Another gelatine salad, pretty for a holiday buffet, is a bing cherry ring. This can also be molded in a heart-shaped container for a Valentine party.

BING CHERRY RING

- 31/2 cups bing cherries, pitted 2 cups orange juice
- 11/2 cups coke
- 1 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons plain gelatine
- 1 cup walnuts

Drain the cherry juice and add enough water to make two cups. Combine with one and a half cups orange juice, coke, and sugar, and bring to a boil. Dissolve the gelatine in remaining orange juice, and then add to the hot fruit syrup. Place in refrigerator and when it begins to set, add the drained cherries and walnut meats. Pour into oiled ring mold and chill until firm. Serve with a dressing made by combining cream cheese with light cream until it is pourable.

New Christmas Toys Are Noisier Than Ever Before

Toy shopping this year will take a keen ear as well as a sharp eye. For sound is the new dimension in toys for 1964.

Along with the usual sounds of excited children, a stroll through any toy store will uncover bicycles and tricycles that puttputt like motor bikes, toy race cars that roar like Indianapolis racers, dump trucks and skiploaders that growl like heavy construction equipment, and dolls, toys, and games of all descriptions that bring forth sounds and whole sentences with no more urging than the simple pull of a string.

Never before have toys provided such a crescendo of the sound of play.

Actually there's nothing revolutionary about sounds in toys. They've been tinkling, popping, squeaking, clanking, and banging for a long time. The new angle is realism in both sound and appearance. A few years ago dolls began talking and a whole new trend in realism was es-how realistic - may come as a jolt to adults who look with nostalgia on the happy days when play sounds consisted mostly of bang-bang," sticks sliding across picket fences, and the flipping noise obtained by attaching playing cards or clothespins to bicycle spokes. It all begain in 1960, when Mattel, Inc. introduced a chatterbox named Chatty Cathy. Chatty's immediate popularity spawned a loquacious family of talking dolls and the rush to sound was on.

The reason for this trend, according to Clifford W. Jacobs, vice president of Mattel, Inc., world's largest toymaker, is more built-in fun.

Jacobs reports that a realistic sounding toy stimulates a child's imagination. And a stimulating toy means more fun for the child, as well as more value to the parental purchaser.

Dolls, an all-time favorite toy, are a good example.

Even when dolls were saying "mama," they did little to help their youthful owners create new play situations. Then dolls began to talk, and they became companions rather than inanimate objects of affection.

At the tug of a string, dolls now say such play-stimulating phrases as "Let's go to the store," or "I'm sleepy, put me to bed," and off goes little Suzie with a new play idea.

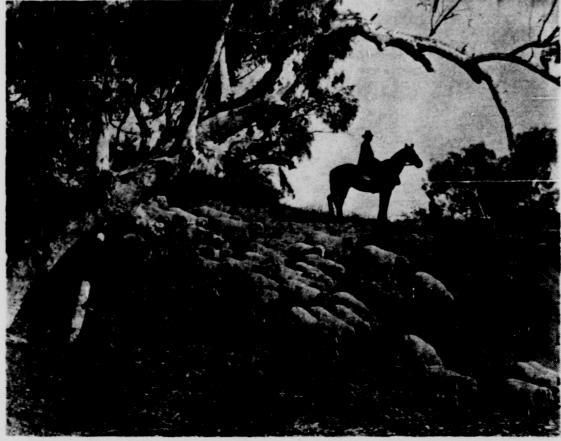

Another reason for sound is that today's children are more sophisticated in their knowledge of playthings. They're exposed to more toys than ever before, and to catch and hold their attention a toy must really provide fun.

With fun coming from sound, some of the new items for Christmas are quite an earful.

Talking dolls of all kinds are still tops in popularity. And along with the familiar baby dolls, there are now such popular cartoon characters as Bugs Bunny, Bozo the Clown, and Woody Woodpecker in talking doll or puppet versions. There is also a cute beatnik type doll in black tights and overblouse who rattles off catchy, if somewhat way out, phrases. But the newest of all in talking toys are soft, cuddly animals with mouths that move when they talk.

One loveable lion growls, "I'm the king of the jungle," then slyly asks, "Aren't I?"

A nautical-looking multi-colored parrot sits on its lofty perch and intones, "Four bells, time to eat. Feed the birdie."

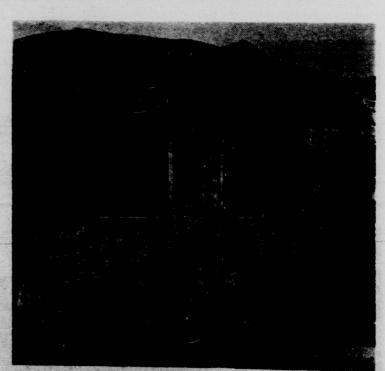

Both look surprisingly realistic, with mouths and beaks that move as they speak.

For the boys, there are realistic-sounding motor toys, bicycles, and tricycles. Called V-Room!, they simulate actual motor sounds to a degree the younger set never thought possible. The bikes and trikes look and sound like motorcycles, without strain to a boy's imagination, larynx, or deck of cards.

Naturally, the ever-popular toy guns are keeping pace with a variety of sounds guaranteed to be better than "bang-bang."

For the absolute last word in sound realism, there's a doll you feed from a bottle, place over your shoulder, pat gently, and she burps. Undoubtedly, she's a she burps. Undoubtedly, she's a doll that will really stimulate the imagination of youngsters with baby sisters.

All this ingenuity — and product research — by the na-tion's toymakers add up to one underliable fact.

It faced its most difficult problem in securing authentic costumes of the 1941 era, the time during which the story takes place. The picture, based on James Bassett's best-selling novel, involves the men and women who were caught up in the Pacific conflict following the attack on Pearl Harbor.

N. Y. Woodwind Quintet To Play on SCSC Campus

The world famous New York Woodwind Quintet will present a concert on the Southern Colorado State College campus at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

This will be the second in the 1964-65 special events Fine Arts Series presented by Southern Colorado State College.

The concert, to be presented in the ballroom of the Student Center of SCSC, will be free to the public. However, students and faculty of SCSC will be first to be admitted up to 7:45 p.m. when the public will also be able to gain admission.

The New York Herald-Tribune said of the New York Woodwind Quintet after their Carnegie recital last February that, "the five players were masters of their instruments and experts at ensemble." About the same recital the New York Times said, "the Woodwind Quintet, as usual, made their program choice and the performances were witty, delicate, pungent and soar-

In addition to the regular evening presentation the Woodwind Quintet will appear on the SCSC campus for a special workshop Tuesday at 2 p.m. Outstanding high school and college student quintets have been invited to play for the New York Woodwind Quintet ensemble who will evaluate each one.

For the past 15 years, the New York Woodwind Quintet has maintained its position of preeminence in the field of chamber music through its numerous concerts at home and abroad, its television and radio appearances and its highly praised recordings.

The members of the quintet are Samuel Baron, flute; David Glazer, clarinet; Ralph Froe-lich, horn; Ronald Roseman, oboe and Arthur Weisber, bassoon. The instruments, each with its own special color, have been blended into a unique combination of sound. The artists, each a virtuoso in his own right, have won the acclaim of critics everywhere.

The United States State Department has honored the New York Woodwind Quintet on three different occasions with invitations to tour overseas. In 1956, the quintet traveled for ten weeks through South America, and in 1958, the New York Woodwind Quintet was one of the few groups invited to appear at the American Pavilion at the Brussels World's Fair. During the summer and fall of 1962, the group embarked on a highly praised tour of 11 countries in

On these tours, the quintet not only performed at concerts, but also held numerous clinics and workshop sessions at schools and colleges. These educational events, which were often conducted as an informal, personto-person manner, were highly praised by both the people in the countries visited and our own diplomatic corps.

At home, the quintet continues to tour from coast to coast, appearing year after year on the most important concert series in the United States, Canada and Alaska. The numerous return engagements that the quintet fills attest to its ready accept-ance by both chamber music auspices and celebrity series alike. The quintet has often been asked to combine with string groups for the presentation of mixed ensemble masterworks. One of the most important of these events is the "Summer Evenings of Music" series held at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, where since 1954, the members of the New York Woodwind Quintet have been Artists in Residence during the summer session.

A Newsroom Just Ain't the Place To Interview a Bikini, er.. Starlet

By RAY HERST Leisuretime Editor

The only trouble with trying to interview a lovely, blonde starlet in a newsroom filled with bug-eyed men and green-eyed women, is the bug-eyed men and the green-eyed women.

The first we knew that willowly Cheryl Sweeten had entered the newsroom was the rapid clicking of eyeballs snapping to and when the former Miss Colorado stopped at our desk and announced that she had to don pojamas to get her movies, we knew we were in for trouble.

Especially when the panting of the men was interrupted by the newshens who were furiously grinding their teeth and pounding out typing exercises to pretend they hadn't noticed.

But the worst sign was that look in the eyes of the boss that said, "If I had known she was coming, I'd have sent you out to cover a PTA carnival."

Despite the pressure that was thicker than Los Angles smog, we had a job to do and duty comes first always. And reluctant as we were to monopolize Miss Sweeten and her big, deep hazel eyes, we took a deep breath and went to work.

Almost that is. We were interrupted by a photo of the five-foot, six-inch beauty in a skimpy bikini and for a moment we forgot why she was there.

"Duty first," we muttered and hastily threw the photo aside but not too far as

ARTS CHRONICLE by John Fetler

Lawrence Harris Paintings Exhibited at Local Gallery

PAINTINGS BY LAWRENCE HARRIS - We asked Mrs. Jeanette C. Ward, who is currently corresponding secretary of the Colorado Springs Art Guild, to write a review of the current exhibit of paintings by Colorado Springs artists Lawrence Harris at the Contemporary Gallery. A total of 24 Harris paintings are on view at the gallery, which is located at 111 East Arvada in Ivywild. The hours are from 1:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. daily, and the exhibit will continue on view through Nov. 28. Mrs. Ward writes:

"The response of the observer to each of the paintings in the exhibition is immediate and clear. As one looks first at Harris's portraits then to his nonobjectives and then on to the realistic one is aware of the range and the change in one's responses to them. From this we can be sure that Harris has excellent control of his paint and painting tools. He proves to be equally as skilled with the roller, his latest technique, as roller, his latest technique, as he is with the palette knife and brush. The technique he selects to use always seems to be right for the subject matter.

"Perhaps the most impressive paintings in this collection are Harris's sail boats. There are five large ones and the largest measure four by six feet. All five are done by the roller technique and the finished ef-fect is most pleasing in tex-tures, and are extremely rich in color. The painting of the boats are not so much paintings of boats as they are paintings of the adventures of these sail boats. One is not so aware or concerned of the water surrounding these boats nor the structure of the boats but one is strongly aware of something immense as one studies these tired, spent vessels anchored in quiet waters. The boats are done in tones of white, black, umber, red and ocher and have a tremendous pull upon the imagination and the observer is overcome by feelings which only the worldly things can impart through their atmospheres they spent years in acquiring. You feel as you study each one of these vessels in-dividually that they have really lived through some great adventures and are thoroughly spent from having suffered much.

"Harris has a deep affection for the European sail boats and they have been very popular with the public ever since he started painting them.

"James the Apostle, also done with the roller is a large painting in white, blue and umber, canvas as do the sail boats. It is the first one of a new in-spired series of religious paint-ings. Included in this show is his well known Stoning of Ste-four portraits. Two are of dig-nified Indians simply entitled Navajo, one is called Judas and a very charming one titled Bavarian Girl. A good portion of Harris' time is devoted to portrait painting and he certainly has a real talent for it.

"The Candle, a small glowing painting done in the black oil technique and painted by candle light holds special significance for Lawrence. It is a picture of a wine bottle containing a lit candle. The many-hued wax drippings flowing over the sides of the bottle gives evidence that it held many candles that were given to him by the people that came to sit for their portraits.

"Lawrence Harris started painting as a boy and studied art in this country and in Europe. Locally, his paintings have been exhibited at both St. Francis and Penrose hospitals, the Colorado Springs Art Guild's Outdoor Art Shows and the Contemporary Art Gallery. A number of his paintings are currently being handled by galleries in Taos, Santa Fe, and Los Angeles.

"As a painter we would say that Harris is a painter of those feelings, and emotions the human experiences. It appears that he is not so much con-cerned with his subjects as he is with their experiences and this is clearly brought out in his paintings of them. He is able to portray all that he feels they are, whether they are as gay and vibrantly youthful as Bavarian Girl or spent and abandoned as Derelict or mysteriously symbolic as Crusader."

Teen Gangs Were Around Back Then

Even though it might seem that there is more juvenile delinquency today than ever before, history seems to prove the old saying that "the more things seem to change, the more they really are the same.'

In recent days newspapers carried stories about drinking and acts of vandalism, wrecking, fighting and crowds of young men of college age generally running amuck.

Back in the 18th Century, there were editorials in weekly journals decrying the same lack of morality and discipline with the youngsters of that period.

In "The Amorous Adventures of Moll Flanders," there is a sequence which depicts a gang of young vandals, known then as the "Mohocks," who amused themselves by terrorizing Londonites by their unruly conduct. And like many of today's juvenile delinquents, the "Mohocks" came of the best of family backgrounds and considered their scandalous escapades as "larks."

Lifetime Actor

Seven-year-old Darby Hinton made his acting debut at the age of six months in a "Playhouse 90," starring Michael Rennie. Recently Rennie was signed by executive producer Aaron Rosenberg to guest-star in the "Sound of Wings" segment of 20th Century-Fox Television's "Daniel Boone," which Darby appears regularly as Fess Parker's son. When Darby heard the news he anxiously queried his mother, "Do

Writes Movie

Michael Pate, who guest-stars as an Indian of irator in the "Sound of Wings segment of "Daniel Boone," just completed another screenplay, "Summer of Love" about Americans living in Florence, Italy. Among Pate's writing credits are the original screenplays for "Escape From Fort Bravo," starring William Holden and "The Dangerous Man Alive." Pate was a radio writer in Australia before becoming an actor.

Canon City Native Finds Sweet Music in the Yard

A music lover could search the world over, and still find the sweetest song in his own backyard.

That old adage could easily be applied to Ben Young, 74, a native of Canon City, now a resident of Winslow, Ariz., who recently returned to Canon City on a visit.

Young, who turned from the violin years ago to work as a locomotive engineer from which he is now retired is visiting his sister, Mrs. Ruth Ertz, 909 N. Fifteenth St., Canon City.

Young brought with him two beautiful violins he made in his workshop in Winslow. One violin is made of Canon City wood, augmented with a piece from a spruce tree felled in the Wet Mountain Valley near West-

The back of the instrument is made of curly poplar taken from a tree stump in Canon City, and the sides are made of maple grown in the area. The top is of Custer county native

The wood was sent to him by Joe Cowan of Canon City, a marble quarry operator. He and Young were friends back in the time when both attended Canon City schools together.

Young, himself, was born in 4 Canon City on May 3, 1890. He was an accomplished enough musician while he still lived in Canon City to direct the orchestra in the old Canon City Opera House. He also played some roles in the silent pictures once made in Canon City.

Young left Canon City for Pueblo where he worked for the railroad, and where he started his hobby of violin making. For 30 years he was behind the throttle of Santa Fe passenger trains, much of the time over the mountainous desert run between Winslow and Seligman,

The second instrument Young brought with him was made of wood from Sweden. Similar to the Canon City wood violin in appearance, it lacks the depth

Taking special interest in the instruments was Prof. Earl R. Gilbert, who taught violin for several years, and is retired music director of Canon City schools and the State Peniten-

Said Gilbert, "This violin made of Canon City area woods has unusual depth of tone and resonance. The workmanship is tremendous. It's truly beauti-

Young plans to stay in Canon City for only a short while be-fore returning to Winslow. He and his wife, Maude, have a married daughter who lives in Fresno, Calif.

You Can't Blow a Safe In Just a Few Minutes

By DICK KLEINER Hollywood Correspondent Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA) -Jack Palance pulled on his black gloves and his best sneer and wondered if he's getting too jolly to be mean.

Behind us, a 72-year-old special effects man named Larry Hampton was getting ready to blow a safe. This was for the movie, "Once a Thief," Hampton had built a solid-looking vault out of wood and very thin veneers of metal. Now he was getting the charges ready for the big safe-cracking scene.

"O.K. ,Larry, you've got the all," director Ralph Nelson told him. And, in effect, Hampton was now in charge of the company. Nothing would move until he gave the word.

So Palance and Van Heflin and Ann-Margret and Alain Delon and all the high-priced cast and crew waited.

Palance was back making his first American movie since "House of Numbers," 71/2 years ago. And he was playing a deep, dark villain, the kind of part he played so often and so well in his lean, mean youth.

"I don't know if I can be really mean any more," Jack said. "I've put on 25 pounds and I'm inclined to be jolly."
As proof of his jollity, he had nice things to say about everybody and everything. About the only thing that brought out the snarl in him was the slow pace of making movies.

"I had forgotten how slow it is," he said. "I liked the fast pace of television. This waiting around is too much."

sadistic sweepstakes in "Once a Thief."

One of his crime partners is played by a youthful heavy named John Davis Chandler, who looks nasty enough to become a very big meanie. He is a blue-eyed blond, and his hair has been lightened to almost whiteness for this part. It accentuates his carefully developed look of depravity.

He's a West Verginian, and back home in Hinton they always called him by his two names-"Come here, John Davis"-so he's kept them both for the screen.

"I like playing a heavy," he said. "I think the heavy parts are written better."

A good thing too. You get the distinct impression that if John Davis didn't like a part, he might go for the writer's throat

Jeff Corey, another of the cast, is doubling as Ann-Margret's drama coach. In Hollywood, he's been teaching acting for 12 years, and has a long waiting list for his classes. His chief worry, on this particular evening, was whether he could get away to a television set in time to see The Doctors and The Nurses. He was in the epi-sode. (He never made it.)

Larry Hampton gave the word that he was ready to blow up the safe. Palance and his crew took their places. The cameras rolled. The gang set the charges, then quickly ducked around corners, and one man pushed the plunger. There was a dull roar, a flash of light, clouds of smoke (from the attache-case-sized black Palance has a rival in the ismolehouts).
